ten life stories

In this candid, genuine book, Michelle Candland reveals the numerous missteps she took and lessons she learned before she found her self and her calling. Along the way she profiles nine other women who have attained success despite adversity, including:

- Lana Culliver, mentor-spokesperson for the Speak for Success Program
- Sara Reinertsen, first female above-the-knee amputee to compete in the Ironman Triathlon
- Laurie Black, former San Diego Port Commissioner
- Suzy Spafford Lidstrom of Suzy's Zoo
- Angelina Salinas, first female Latino Brigadier General of the US Marine Corps

Women have an astonishing ability to do whatever they must to extricate themselves from bad situations, but are also driven to give back. These uplifting tales will inspire and motivate any woman to find her passion, and her place in the world.

MICHELLE CANDLAND retired from a very successful commercial real estate career. Through the San Diego Rotary Club, she was instrumental in a capital campaign that raised millions for the Monarch School for the homeless. She lives in Alpine, California with her husband.
